

CONSERVING

TODAY

preserving

tomorrow

At Lockheed Martin, we are integrating environmental excellence into the fabric of our business.

We've established the most challenging goal any corporation could set – zero adverse impact.

Our 2012 target is to reduce carbon emissions, waste to landfill and water use by 25%.

We need you!

Teams across Lockheed Martin are taking steps to improve our energy and operational efficiency, but each of us can help by minimizing waste, increasing recycling and reducing energy usage. Little actions like turning off lights and electronics at the end of the day can lead to big savings.

Being responsible stewards of our natural resources is making a difference for our customers, communities and future generations.
